Dear Diane:

Looks as though we will have another fight to stop the bridge across the James at Scotland Neck/Jamestowne which will endanger forever the site of Pace's Paines. I doubt seriously that this can be held off much longer. The traffic across the river has reached gigantic proportions in the past 10 years. It costs the Commonwealth millions of dollars to keep the four ferries going and then there is the delay to the passengers going to work in Williamsburg, Jamestowne Festival Park and Busch Gardens (and brewery), etc.

The powers that be are not going to fully subsidize the ferry system. This is a first step to show the population how much it costs to operate the fleet of four ferries.

Ah, well it will not affect our meetings and trip to Pace's Paines in June.

Look forward to seeing everyone there.

Exhibit displays state's past

'Breaking New Ground' shows life in colony's early days

BY BRIAN WHEELER

TIMES-DISPATCH STAFF WRITER

Jamestown Settlement is hoping to attract visitors to an exhibit 300 years in the making.

While it isn't as old as "Jurassic Park," it's a lot more true to life. It's called "Breaking New Ground," an archaeological exhibit that offers a glimpse into life in Virginia in the colony's earliest days.

About 200 objects displayed publicly for the first time yesterday were discovered at Virginia sites excavated since 1980. The artifacts, usually discovered through archaeological surveys, in many cases belong to the state's Department of Historical Resources, according to Tom Davidson, senior curator at Jamestown Settlement.

"Breaking New Ground" includes artifacts from the first plantations and slaves' quarters and what Davidson termed "the best collection of arms and armor that has come from a Virginia site."

Other objects in the exhibit, scheduled to run until March 1995, shed light on how settlers protected their homes against Indian attacks, the prominent role that some women played in Virginia society and the state's trade with Europe.

Since World War II, archaeologists literally have been digging into what life was like for Virginia's settlers. Organizations such as the National Park Service and the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiques sponsored excavations in the 1950s at Jamestown Island and in the 1970s at sites along the James River.

The latest batch of artifacts comes from southern and eastern Virginia, from places such as Bennett Farm in York County and Curle's Plantation in Henrico County.

"It's important in that it's a kind of update on what's happening in Virginia 17th-century archaeology," Davidson said. "I think it's going to give people a different look at Virginia's past."

*HAGS stands for The Heart of America Genealogical Society. Its headquarters and library are located on the third floor of the Kansas City, MO Public Library (Main Branch). The address is Heart of America Genealogical Society and Library, Inc., c/o Kansas City Public Library, 311 East 12th Street, Kansas City, MO 64106.

Members may check out three books for four weeks at any one time. The great strength of this library is the number of family histories. Every June the Anna Ford prize is awarded to the best family history sent to the library for judging the previous year. Second and third prizes are also given. Family histories are sent from all over the United States. All of these family histories become part of the permanent collection and may be checked out to members. The library has a core collections of basic references but this is deliberately limited because directly across the hall is the Missouri Valley Room or Library. This library is strictly reference. The collection is considerably older than that of the HAGS library. For history of the Missouri Valley it is unequalled. The MV (as it is locally known) has a standing order for all publications of the Genealogical Publishing Company. The two libraries are on excellent terms with one another. Great care is taken not to duplicate material unless of great value as a basic reference. Both libraries are open seven days a week. The HAGS hours, however, are considerably more limited so check ahead!

Senate bill seeks to sink tolls for Scotland ferry

Ferry rides across the James River between Scotland and Jamestown will be free if legislation submitted yesterday is adopted.

The bill, proposed by Sen. Frederick M. Quayle, R-Chesapeake, would order the Commonwealth Transportation Board to stop collecting tolls.

Del. William P. Robinson Jr., D-Norfolk, said he will introduce a similar bill in the House today.

The Chesapeake Republican said the tolls unfairly hurt residents of Surry County and other Southside communities who travel to the Peninsula to work, and that the tolls are responsible for lost tourism in the area.

Quayle noted that the two closest bridges for Surry County residents going to the Peninsula — the James River Bridge and Benjamin Harrison Bridge — are "toll free but remote." The bridges are 62 miles apart.

Many of you will remember several years ago the fight we had to prevent the construction of a bridge across James River which would end on the south side at Paces Paines (Mount Pleasant) and forever destroy any artifacts which may be there. The fight goes on today as the General Assembly meets for the next 60 days. We should all join in the fight, along with the Lower James River Association in protesting this invasion of an important historical site.

Who was he? Where does he fit? One source says he was born 1806 in VA, taken to KY as a boy, settled in Calloway Co., MO in 1836. m. Frances McDonald. This source lists a son, John Wm. Pace, b. 28 Sept. 1834, Montgomery Co., KY. Another source dated 4 Oct. 1836 Wyatt grants Power of Attorney to brother, James Pace. There is mention of "late wife, Frances McDonald." This document was witnessed by: Mary Ann Pace, Frances Kelley, Nicholas Johnston. We are fairly certain Nicholas m. Docia/Doshia Pace, dtr of Mary Ann.

20 Sept. 1836, Power of Attorney to James Pace signed: Mary Ann Pace, Francis Kelley, Nicholas Johnston. Mary Ann's dtr, Mary, m. Francis Kelley...right?

24 Jan. 1832, Clarke Co., KY Will Book, re: Estate of Murray Pace mentions purchasers John, Wyatt, Edward and Mary Ann. Was this Murray grandfather of these four?

13 Oct. 1845 Nicholas Johnston signed a statement, under oath, that to the best of his knowledge there were four heirs or legal representatives of the estate of Mary Ann Pace: Wyatt Pace, Mary Kelley, James Pace and Dosha.

Backing up a bit, in 1834, on 14th of January, Wiatt Pace was surety for Mary Pace and Francis Kelley with Murray Pace proving her age and on August 11th that same year Wiatt Pace was surety for Dosha Pace, dtr of Joseph Pace, deceased, and Nicholas Johnston.

Was Mary Ann Pace married to Joseph Pace, son of Murray? Where does Ann Hicks/Ricks come in? One listing of the children of Joseph and Ann mentions Dosha and Mary.

Thank you "cousins". My FGSs wait for some input.

Picante sauce pioneer David Pace, 79, dead

Died in - San Antonio

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN ANTONIO — David E. Pace, a pioneer in the hot sauce industry and creator of the original Pace Picante Sauce in 1947, has died. He was 79.

Pace died Monday of heart failure. He had been hospitalized on Christmas.

His famous hot sauce received a gold medal in the Monde Selection in Brussels, Belgium, and was named best picante sauce in the world three times.

A native of Monroe, La., Pace was the son of a manufacturer of maple syrup and jellies. Pace earned a football scholarship to Tulane University, where he played tackle. He was named to the All-Southern football team and played in the first Sugar Bowl.

PACE:
Heart failure

In San Antonio, after coaching football and serving as an Army test pilot, Pace entered the food business. He cooked and bottled jellies, jams and syrups in the back of a rented liquor store.

Pace later decided the real syrup of Texas was picante sauce.

He and his then-wife Margaret Bosshardt formed Pace Foods with a family recipe of jalapenos, onions and garlic, which he perfected by adding tomatoes.

The Paces were divorced in 1976. Shortly afterward, Pace sold the company to his former wife. In 1989, Kit Goldsberry, the Paces' former son-in-law, became sole owner of Pace Foods, where he had worked since 1969.

Pace, an entrepreneur in other areas as well, patented an executive chair in 1967 that could be opened flat for taking a nap. He was president of Pace Chair Co.

Services were scheduled for 11:30 a.m. today in St. Luke's Episcopal Church in San Antonio with burial in Sunset Memorial Park.

The editor would like to thank the many, many members of the Pace Society who sent her copies of David Pace's obituaries.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas — David E. Pace, who created the original Pace Picante Sauce in 1947 and helped set the stage for phenomenal growth in the Mexican sauce market, died Monday. He was 79.

His sauce received a gold medal in the Monde Selection in Brussels, Belgium, and his product was named best picante sauce in the world three times.

An entrepreneur, Mr. Pace also patented an executive chair which could be opened flat so that businesspeople could nap in their offices. He was president of Pace Chair Co.

A native of Monroe, La., Mr. Pace was the son of a manufacturer of maple syrup and jellies. He earned a football scholarship to Tulane University and was named to the All-Southern football team as a tackle. He also played in the first Sugar Bowl.

After graduation in 1937, he coached football for two years before joining the Army Air Corps. He completed pilot training in 1940.

Mr. Pace was a test pilot in the Army and served in India. After his return to San Antonio, he entered the syrup business he learned as a boy. Pace later decided the real syrup of Texas was picante sauce, and he and his wife formed Pace Foods with a family recipe of jalapenos, onions and garlic, which he altered by adding tomatoes.

Mr. Pace and his first wife, Margaret Bosshardt, were married in San Antonio in 1942 and they had two children. The Paces were divorced in 1976. Shortly afterward, Mr. Pace sold the company to his former wife. In 1989, Kit Goldsbury, the Paces' former son-in-law, became sole owner of Pace Foods.

In 1986 Pace and the former Jean Overland were married in San Antonio. She had four children from a previous marriage.

Life was spicy as his product

As you may know, the best brand of "Texas syrup" is Pace Picante Sauce. Made in San Antonio, it was created nearly 50 years ago from a family recipe by David Pace, a Louisiana native whose piercing eyes saw the world from a different angle.

His product and the enterprise it produced — Pace Foods — is a nice business story. Today, the privately owned company has nearly a 30 percent market share of the $730 million Mexican salsa market, which is growing.

The better story is David Pace. He was one of those active individuals able to spend his life in his own way.

If you can do that and make a large amount of money in business, nowadays you're called an "entrepreneur."

You could call Pace that, but I wouldn't. It's a meaningless label that doesn't describe the texture of a strong man irrigated with a lot of independence.

The word individuality comes to mind for people like him. His mental equipment was different. It carried him from Monroe, La., to New Orleans in the 1930s, where he attended Tulane University on a football scholarship and studied dentistry. He was named to the All-Southern football team as a tackle, played in the first Sugar Bowl against Temple in 1936 and after graduation, became a football coach.

Then he joined the Army Air Corps. And became a test pilot. After World War II, he worked at a brewery. But only briefly.

He rented the back of a liquor store, where a Pace Food, Inc. biography says he "cooked and bottled jellies, jams and syrups every morning, and delivered the products from the back of his truck in the afternoon."

Always a tinkerer, Pace designed and patented an executive chair in 1967 that could be opened flat for taking a nap. After he died at the end of December, his daughter Linda told a San Antonio newspaper that, "My father designed his executive chair because of an old football injury."

The chair never sold commercially, but it's not likely that David Pace cared. The real reward for a man like him is in the hands-on work of devising a way around a problem.

Courageous and energetic people like Pace have created some of this country's largest and most successful corporations.

Today, these companies typically are operated by professional managers whose thinking and behavior are controlled by compensation plans based on short-term financial results. As a practical matter, that does not encourage spontaneous behavior or, as Ralph Waldo Emerson once said, "inventions, inspirations, flashes of genius."

Emerson was describing courage, which is necessary not to live dangerously but to live as you want. David Pace did that.

You may know a person like him. They're highly self-sufficient, tend to be self-employed and provide a superior service or product.

They are not perfect, just the real thing.

THE PACE FAMILY

The first known PACE in America was a RICHARD PACE with his wife Isabella (Smyth) who came from England prior to May of 1615. By 1620 he had established a plantation called Pace's Paines on the south shore of the James River, almost opposite Jamestown, Virginia. A certain John Pace is on record as owning a plantation in Middlesex County, VA in 1693. Descendents of these two main lines of PACES in America now number in the thousands.

THE PACE FAMILY, 1607-1750, 253 pages, hardbound book includes chapters on St. Dunstons and All Saints; Richard and Isabella; The Massacre; George I and Maycox; The North Carolina Paces; Middlesex; Goochland; Fluvanna; Kentucky; Georgia Paces; James and Darius; the Mormon Line; the Italian Connection and many other interesting and informative chapters.

The first printing of 300 books sold out within a six month's period and we are now offering to you copies on a new supply of 500. Order your copy today, $25.00 plus $2.50 postage and handling. Make checks payable to THE PACE SOCIETY OF AMERICA and mail to:
